The UK Timber and Timber Products (Placing on the Market) Regulations (UKTR) have applied in Great Britain since 1 January 2021, replacing the European Timber Regulation (EUTR). While the legislation changed in name, the requirements under UKTR remain the same as under EUTR.

The aim of the regulation is simple:

✓ To prevent illegally harvested timber from entering UK supply chains.

Failure to comply with UKTR can result in:

- Confiscation of products
 - Financial penalties or fines

Our Commitment

As a company that imports the majority of its stock, Creffields (Timber & Boards) Ltd. fully recognises the importance of UKTR and is committed to carrying out the necessary due diligence to mitigate the risk of illegal timber entering our supply chain.

We do this by:

- Applying a robust due diligence system to assess and minimise risk.
- Prioritising the purchase of certified products (FSC® and PEFC), as these certifications already include thorough checks on legality and sustainability.
- Maintaining both FSC® and PEFC Chain of Custody certification, ensuring traceability and credibility of our certified timber and panel products.

While certification does not in itself guarantee compliance, it makes the due diligence process more straightforward and reliable.

Assurance for Our Customers

By purchasing from Creffields (Timber & Boards) Ltd., customers can be confident that:

- We have already undertaken the full due diligence process required under UKTR.
- The timber and panel products we supply are legally sourced and compliant.
- Customers need only keep their own purchase and sales records as required, without repeating the same due diligence steps we have already carried out.
